General Information

1 Identification of the person about whom Revenu Québec holds confidential information or documents

"The person" means the person about whom Revenu Québec holds confidential information or documents. The person can be an individual, a deceased individual, an individual in business, a corporation, a partnership, a trust or an organization.

2 Revocation

It is up to the person who granted authorization to communicate information or documents or power of attorney to revoke it, if they or their legal or authorized representative decide that it no longer applies. If authorizations or powers of attorney were granted to more than one person, a separate copy of this form must be used for each one.

An authorization or power of attorney can also be revoked verbally. Contact us to let us know, and the revocation will be effective immediately. Note that we may still require written confirmation.

3 Signature

This form will be returned if Part 3 is not signed.

If the person is an individual, this part must be signed by the individual or by their legal or authorized representative (a tutor, a curator, a mandatary designated by a mandate in case of incapacity homologated by a court, a liquidator of a succession (estate), a trustee or any other person duly authorized through a power of attorney). The legal or authorized representative will have to provide documents proving that they are authorized to sign and file form LM-14-V, Information About a Representative, with Revenu Québec.

If the person is a trust, this part must be signed by a beneficiary.

If the person is a business, this part must be signed by an authorized representative (any person who can provide documents proving that they are authorized to sign documents for the business). In the case of an individual in business, it must be signed by the individual. In the case of a corporation, it must be signed by one of the directors (president, vice-president, secretary or treasurer). Finally, in the case of a partnership, it must be signed by one of the partners.

In the case of a corporation, only a resolution of the board of directors of the corporation or a unanimous shareholder agreement can authorize a designated person carrying out a mandate to sign a return, a certificate or any other document made by the corporation for the purposes of a tax law or regulations made under such a law.

Appendices

If there is not enough room on this form, add extra sheets containing the necessary information. Make sure you clearly mark which part of the form the information on each appendix pertains to.

In addition, if more than one legal or authorized representative is required to sign the form, enclose an appendix with each representative's name, signature and position, as well as the date of each signature.

Authorization to communicate information or power of attorney

If ever you want to grant an authorization or a power of attorney to another person, business or trust once this revocation is effective, file form MR-69-V, Authorization to Communication Information or Power of Attorney, with us.
